NOVEMBER 12-13th Heritage Auction's 2010 November Beverly Hills Signature Movie Poster Auction

More than 1,400 lots of the best and the rarest in vintage movie posters will be offered at Heritage Auction's Beverly Hills Signature Movie Poster Auction at their November 12 event. These include the only known copy of the Teaser one sheet (27" X 41") for the 1935 Universal horror masterpiece The Bride of Frankenstein, considered by some collectors to be the greatest of all horror posters. It carries a pre-auction estimate of $700,000+.

Great cinema from Golden Age Hollywood is represented by many important lots in this auction, with horror, as always, taking the lead with more than 125 offerings. An oversized Austrian three sheet to the 1933 classic King Kong is already drawing collector attention as this massive, gorgeous poster prepares to find a new home. It is estimated at $50,000+.

Other rare horror posters hotly anticipated in this auction include a half sheet to Werewolf of London (1935), estimated at $40,000+, a jumbo window card to Son of Frankenstein (1939), estimated at $7,000+, and an important and rare portrait lobby card from Dracula (1931), estimated at $24,000+.

MUST SEE TV FOR ANY HOLLYWOOD MEMORABILIA COLLECTORS

You don't have to be a fan of reality shows to thoroughly enjoy Syfy Channel's Hollywood Treasure. If you enjoy movie memorabilia, this show is for you.

Hollywood Treasure follows Profiles in History owner Joe Maddalena as he navigates his way through the intricate world of collecting showbiz and pop culture memorabilia.

Since Ed and I are isolated down here in the bayous, it's nice to see some of LAMP's sponsors, members and clients on a television show. We have watched all four episodes so far and we thoroughly enjoy it.

Wednesday's at 10:00 ET/9:00 C.
